THE PALAIS BROGNIART AN ICONIC STUNNING HISTORIC BUILDING IS THE IDEAL PLACE FOR FINTECH

The Palais Brogniart, renowned as the famous trading floor, around which stokebrokers dealt with the largest values quoted on the stock exchange, was removed on 14 July 1987. It was built upon the orders of Napoleon and is named after the architect that designed it: Alexandre Théodore Brongniart. Opened on 4 November 1826 by the Comte de Chabrol (the prefect of the Seine), it housed the Bourse de Paris (Paris stock exchange) for nearly one and a half centuries. The Bourse de Paris has since moved. The famous trading floor, around which stokebrokers dealt with the largest values quoted on the stock exchange, was removed on 14 July 1987. The Palais Brongniart houses a gallery devoted to the Bourse and its role in the economy. Architect: A. Brongniart. Since 2008, the site can no longer be visited.

OVER 180 FINTECH CEO'S GLOBALLY GATHER IN PARIS SHARING THEIR EXPERIENCES AND PITCHES ON STAGE Over 180 Fintech CEOs from around the world were present in the panels & interviews as well as on our stage dedicated to pitches & showcases. The majority of these Fintechs were also present in the exhibition hall in Fintech mini stands to better interact with the participants. During these two days we addressed all the themes at the heart of the news of digital finance in general and of Fintech in particular in more than 80 panels & interviews. To host this international event, we selected a legendary place in our industry: the Palais Brongniart in the heart of Paris, fully privatized for the occasion. o be continued...
